

caillou

Makes A Snowman

caillou[®]

Makes A Snowman

A Chouette Publishing adaptation
Original text by Roger Harvey, based on the animated series Illustrations: CINAR Animation

chouette COOKIE JAR

It had been snowing all morning. Caillou and Sarah were very happy. The two friends laughed as they tried to catch snowflakes on their tongues. "Let's make a snowman," suggested Sarah.

"You have to make three balls of snow," explained Sarah. "A little one for the head and two big ones for the body." She picked up some snow in her hands and patted it into a little ball.

Caillou watched Sarah carefully. She put her snowball down in the snow and started rolling it. The ball grew bigger and bigger, leaving a wide path behind her.

Caillou made a little pile of snow and pushed on it with his hands. The pile grew bigger, but it didn't move. Caillou pushed harder to roll the snow, then he slipped and fell.

"Is the snowman's head ready?" asked Sarah. Caillou wished he could make a big snowball like the one his friend Sarah had made.

"Don't worry. We'll make the biggest snowman in the world."

"The biggest snowman in the world?" Caillou asked.

"First, you have to make a very small snowball," Sarah explained.

Caillou copied whatever Sarah did. This time, he managed to make a perfect, round snowball.

Caillou looked down at his snowball and then over at Sarah. He had a mischievous idea. He threw the snowball at his friend. "Hey!" Sarah yelled. Then she threw a snowball back at Caillou.

He ducked to avoid it. He wanted to keep throwing snowballs. "Stop it," Sarah warned. But Caillou's snowball was already flying through the air and hit Sarah on the head.

"If you don't want to help me make a snowman, I'm going home," Sarah said. "But, I do want to make a snowman with you, Sarah." "Well, all right."

Caillou and Sarah each made another snowball and rolled them through the snow. This time, they both ended up in the middle of the yard.

"Whew!" puffed Caillou.

"We have to put our snowman together. First, let's put this ball on top of the biggest one," said Sarah.

"Caillou! Sarah!
I've got a surprise for you." It was Caillou's mommy, carrying a bag in her hands.

Caillou reached into the bag and pulled out a carrot. He wondered what it was for.
"A perfect nose for our snowman!" said Sarah.

"Look really carefully in the bag," Mommy said. This time, Caillou found two buttons, which he used for the snowman's eyes.

"I think I have something else for you, too," said Mommy, pulling a hat out of her pocket.

"Now, we need to give him a name," said Sarah.
"Pom-Pom!" Caillou called out.
"Perfect!" agreed Sarah, clapping her hands in delight.

"Great job, both of you! Come on in now. I've got a nice snack for you."

"Wait!" cried Caillou.

Mommy turned around. "What are you doing, Caillou?"

"I'm making a snowball. It's for Pom-Pom's snack."

Backpack

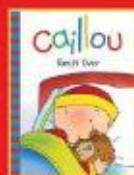

Age 3 and up

Caillou makes his first snowman with the help of his friend, Sarah.

Caillou Makes A
Snowman

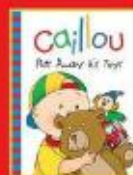

Caillou Sleeps Over

Caillou And Rosie's Doll

Caillou Plans
A Surprise

Caillou Puts Away
His Toys

chouette

© 2012 Chouette Publishing (1987) Inc.
1001 Lenoir St., Suite B-238
Montreal, Quebec H4C 2Z6 Canada
www.chouettepublishing.com

